

JOB OPPORTUNITY

ORGANIZATION:

Tulane University

JOB TITLE:

Assistant Professor - Microeconomic Theory & Political Economy

LOCATION: New Orleans, Louisiana, USA

DESCRIPTION:

The Murphy Institute of Political Economy and the Department of Economics at Tulane University invite applications for one full-time tenure-track position, most likely at the rank of Assistant Professor, beginning July 1, 2019. Applicants should have primary research and teaching interests in microeconomic theory, as applied specifically to issues in political economy. Preference will be given to applicants who also have interests in fields where the department has existing strengths and is focusing its graduate programs (health and labor economics; inequality and poverty; the economics of education; and public economics). The position is 50 percent in the Murphy Institute of Political Economy and 50 percent in the Department of Economics, with the tenure home in the Department of Economics. All applications must be submitted through Interfolio (<http://apply.interfolio.com/56797>). Required materials include a letter of interest, a vita, three reference letters, and a research paper. The complete application must be received by December 3, 2018 to be given full consideration; candidates will be considered until the position is filled. For more information, see the Department's website at <http://econ.tulane.edu/>. Contact: Erin Callhover, Department of Economics, 206 Tilton Hall, Tulane University, New Orleans, LA, 70118 (economic@tulane.edu). Tulane University is an equal employment opportunity/affirmative action/persons with disabilities/veterans employer committed to excellence through diversity. Tulane will not discriminate against individuals with disabilities or veterans. We invite women and minorities to apply.

◀ QUALIFICATIONS: Applicants should have primary research and teaching interests in microeconomic theory, as applied specifically to issues in political economy. Preference will be given to applicants who also have interests in fields where the department has existing strengths and is focusing its graduate programs (health and labor economics; inequality and poverty; the economics of education; and public economics).

APPLICATION DEADLINE: December 3, 2018